

HISTORIC SITE

LOX CURRY RANCH

Early 1900'S

The "LOX" brand was originally registered by E.R. Barkley before 1884. The brand came to this particular ranch with a herd of cattle that the Sloans purchased from Barkley in 1906. Clarence Curry bought out the holding of Sam Sloan as well as his "LOX" brand.

Clarence & Maggie Curry in the trophy room, which was built after a fire burned the original home down in 1951. He immediately rebuilt, marking their new house with the LOX brand on the chimney and replacing many of his hunting treasures he saved from the fire. One of Currie's passions was big game hunting, as well as ranching.

The LOX home is now owned by Richard & Michaelene McCulloch

Designated by Red Feather Historical Society

